Luxembourg-headquartered Luxaviation has rolled-out a new fully integrated online management system to facilitate real-time travel management for its customers.

The system has been conceived to provide a single point of contact that enables all Luxaviation Group clients to access one of the most comprehensive customer experience platforms available online.

The customer portal integrates an advanced aircraft specification application, intelligent empty-leg management with social sharing and a seamless booking tool

Pieter Steyn, Chief Information Officer of Luxaviation, commented: “Our new one-stop online client platform with its wide range of applications is a significant achievement in the ever-changing aviation world. We are delighted to introduce this exciting and competitive technology to our customers to provide a complete, intuitive and user-friendly experience.”
